Charlotte Employees Make a Difference in Lives of Those with Special Needs Through "Holy Angels"

The Building Group's Charlotte office recently demonstrated that our company truly is "All About People" when they donated both their time and financial resources to help enrich the lives of local adults and children who have mental retardation and physical disabilities.

Partnering with Holy Angels, a private, non-profit organization founded by the Sisters of Mercy, the Building Group's Vickie Oakley issued a "call for help," which elicited an enthusiastic response from fellow employees. Following a collection period, Vickie and a group of six colleagues proudly delivered an adult-sized tricycle laden with donated items from our employees to one of Holy Angels' group homes. Our delivery team was privileged to receive a "mini-tour" of the facility after presenting the many gifts, personal items and gift cards for the residents (children and adults) — as well as the oversized tricycle.

"Holy Angels' mission is to provide a home of unconditional love and unlimited possibilities, helping each resident reach their fullest potential," said Oakley. "It was a joy and privilege to organize this community service effort on behalf of our company. I can't begin to describe the overflow of support from our office, jobsites and executives. It was extremely rewarding for all of us to know that we are making a difference."
