James King Joins BE&K Building Group in Nashville as Vice President with Focus on Healthcare Sector

The BE&K Building Group announces that James King has joined the company's Nashville operation as Vice President. King's construction industry experience spans nearly 30 years with the majority of his career focused on healthcare construction.

"We welcome the addition of James to our management team," said Edward Lee Smith, executive vice president and healthcare market sector leader. "Over the past 22 years, James has successfully completed more than $1.1 billion of healthcare facilities. Our current and future clients will most certainly benefit from his extensive knowledge and experience in leading teams on large and complex healthcare projects."

King received his Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville (1981). He later completed the Executive Leadership Course at Columbia University Business School. King is a Licensed Contractor in Tennessee and has earned his American Society for Healthcare Engineering (ASHE) certification.

In addition to his membership in ASHE, King has served on the board of Nashville's ACE Mentoring as well as the Nashville Healthcare Council.
